

black mountain - educational turn and the avantgarde symposium 25-26/9/2015
public event

black mountain college

Black Mountain College (1933-1957) developed an unprecedented prominent genealogy of artists, scientists and intellectuals in the neo-avant-garde of the 20th century. As an educational art institution, it established performative practices of interdisciplinary learning and researching, which included at least two crucial factors: collaboration and experimentation. This unique complicity of an educational turn and the emergence of an avantgarde is of crucial interest in today's debates on issues of education and pedagogy in art, science and academia under precarious economic circumstances.
